

Anglia Ruskin University

Anglia Ruskin University contributes actively to the economic strength of the region by supporting the growth and success of businesses, particularly small and medium-sized companies. Our range of services for businesses include providing training, product development and knowledge solutions for companies across the East of England and the UK, working on projects from healthcare and business through to engineering. These projects are managed through technical and management consultancy services from our experts at our Cambridge or Chelmsford campuses.